

Gateways to Better Education

Equipping Christians in Public Schools

Gateways to Better Education (GTBE) equips public school educators, leaders, parents, and students to protect and promote religious and academic freedom regarding the Bible and Christianity.

GTBE training includes how to protect and encourage religious and academic freedom appropriately, legally, within existing constitutional boundaries, current laws, and state academic standards.

Founder and former public-school educator, Eric Buehrer trains fellow Christians (in-person and online) to respond with clarity about what is allowed in public schools instead responding with fear and confusion. The training provides students, educators, and parents with a better way to education.

The Gateways team offers a free summary of your state's academic standards and an e-newsletter. Other resources include: Keeping the Faith in Public Schools (Handbook & DVD), Free to Speak pamphlets, School Prayer Cards, and How Christianity Changed the World book.

Contact them at gogateways.org or call (800) 929-1163.